107 neoclassical villas, composed around light, water and the slow rhythm of a day.

THE COMMUNITY

Your street, lined with palms and light

Some addresses are found. This one was composed

On 8 quiet acres in Rajanukunte, Eloria brings the proportion and permanence of neoclassical architecture to North Bengaluru: 107 private villas, each turned to face the morning.

What follows is not a list of rooms. It is a single day, lived inside one of them.

EVERY VILLA · VASTU COMPLIANT

Architecture that endures

It begins at the street: a façade in perfect balance, columns rising to a crisp cornice, tall French windows set deep like frames. Inside, the ceiling lifts to double height and light pours through glass taller than a room.

Built to outlast its builders. Turned east, drawn to Vastu.

A day at Eloria

From first light in the bedroom to the last hour on the terrace, a villa is best understood by how it holds your hours.

06:10	First light in the bedroom	06
07:30	Dressing room & bath	07
08:30	Breakfast at the island	08
11:00	The double-height hall	09
13:30	Lunch, garden on two sides	10
17:00	Between floors	11
18:45	The deck opens to water	12
20:00	Evening, then the terrace	13

06:10

FIRST LIGHT

The sun finds you before the alarm does

East-facing bedrooms, sized like a bungalow's, open through full-height glass onto the garden or a private balcony. Every bedroom is a suite, with its own walk-in wardrobe and bath.

BEDROOM UP TO 15'9" × 11'6"

06

07:30 A private hour, unhurried

WALK-IN WARDROBE

A dedicated dressing room off every bedroom, up to 10'0" × 5'0", so the bedroom stays a bedroom.

THE BATH

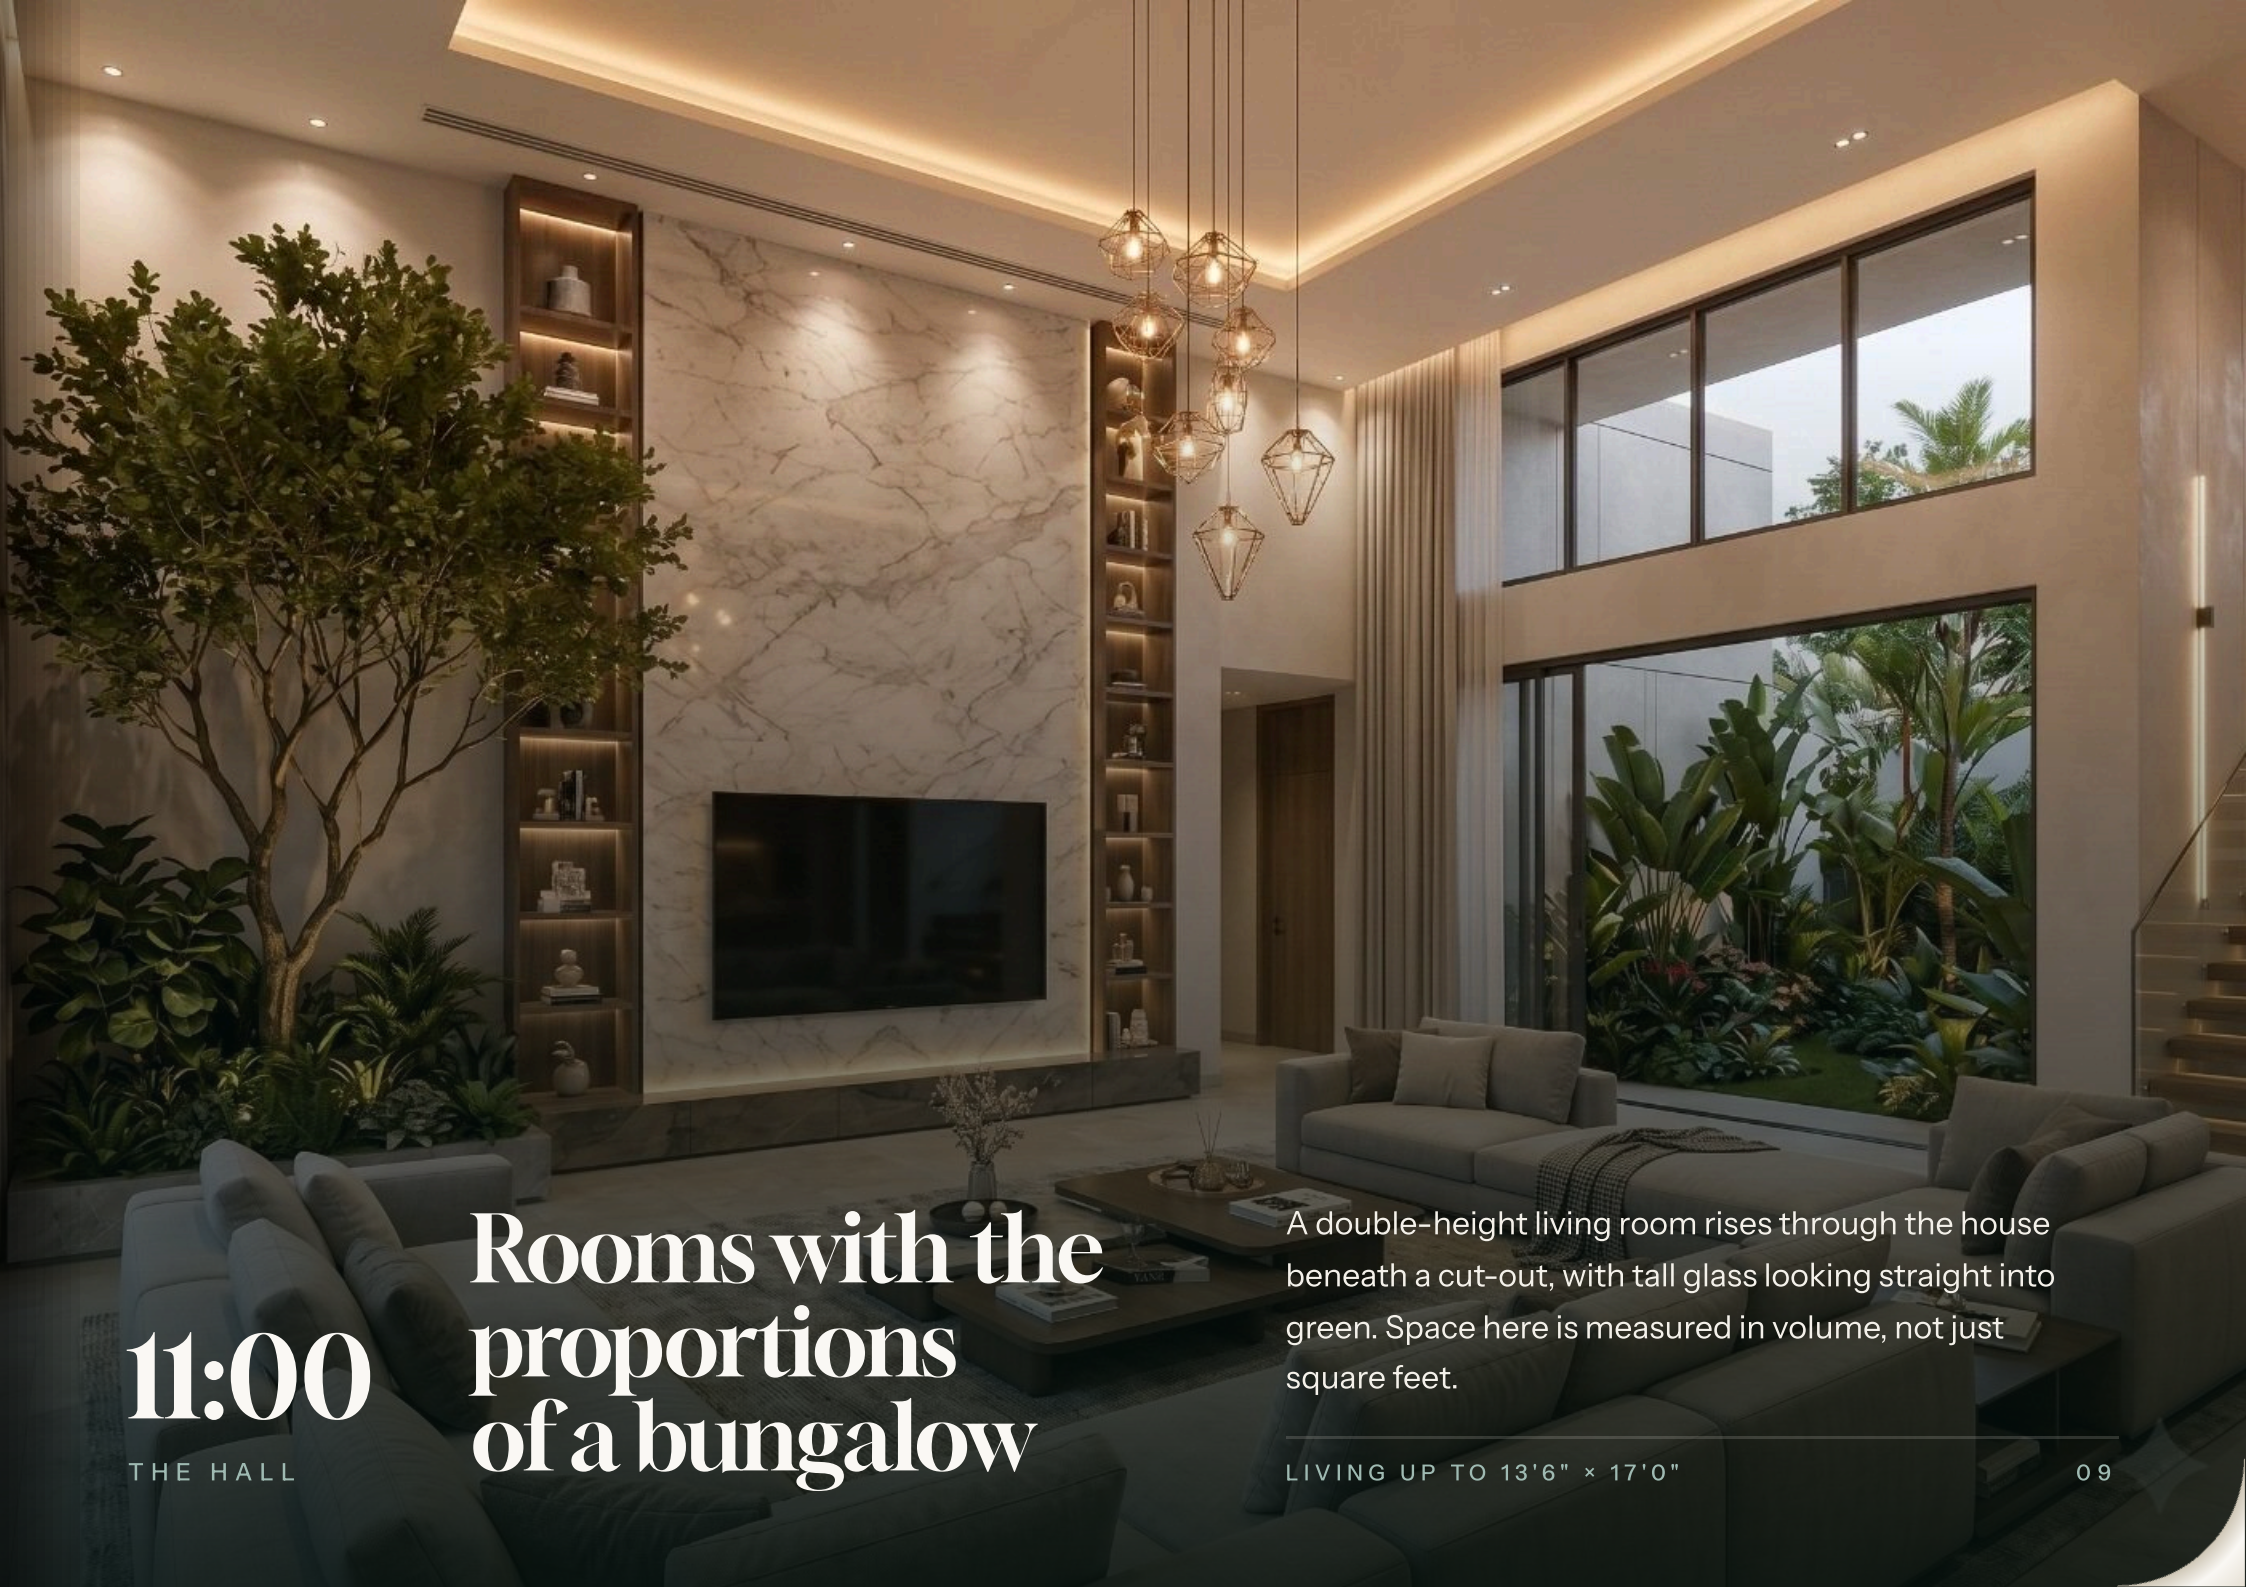

Stone-toned baths with provision for a shower and freestanding tub, lit by a garden-facing window.

08:30

BREAKFAST

Where the house gathers first

An open dining-kitchen of up to 17'6" x 12'0", with a separate utility behind it, so the work of the house stays out of sight.

11:00

THE HALL

Rooms with the proportions of a bungalow

A double-height living room rises through the house beneath a cut-out, with tall glass looking straight into green. Space here is measured in volume, not just square feet.

LIVING UP TO 13'6" × 17'0"

09

13:30

LUNCH

The garden is the fourth wall

Big windows and sliding glass let the dining room borrow the landscape on two sides. On a fair afternoon, lunch simply moves outside.

17:00

BETWEEN FLOORS

Take the stairs for the view, the lift for the shopping

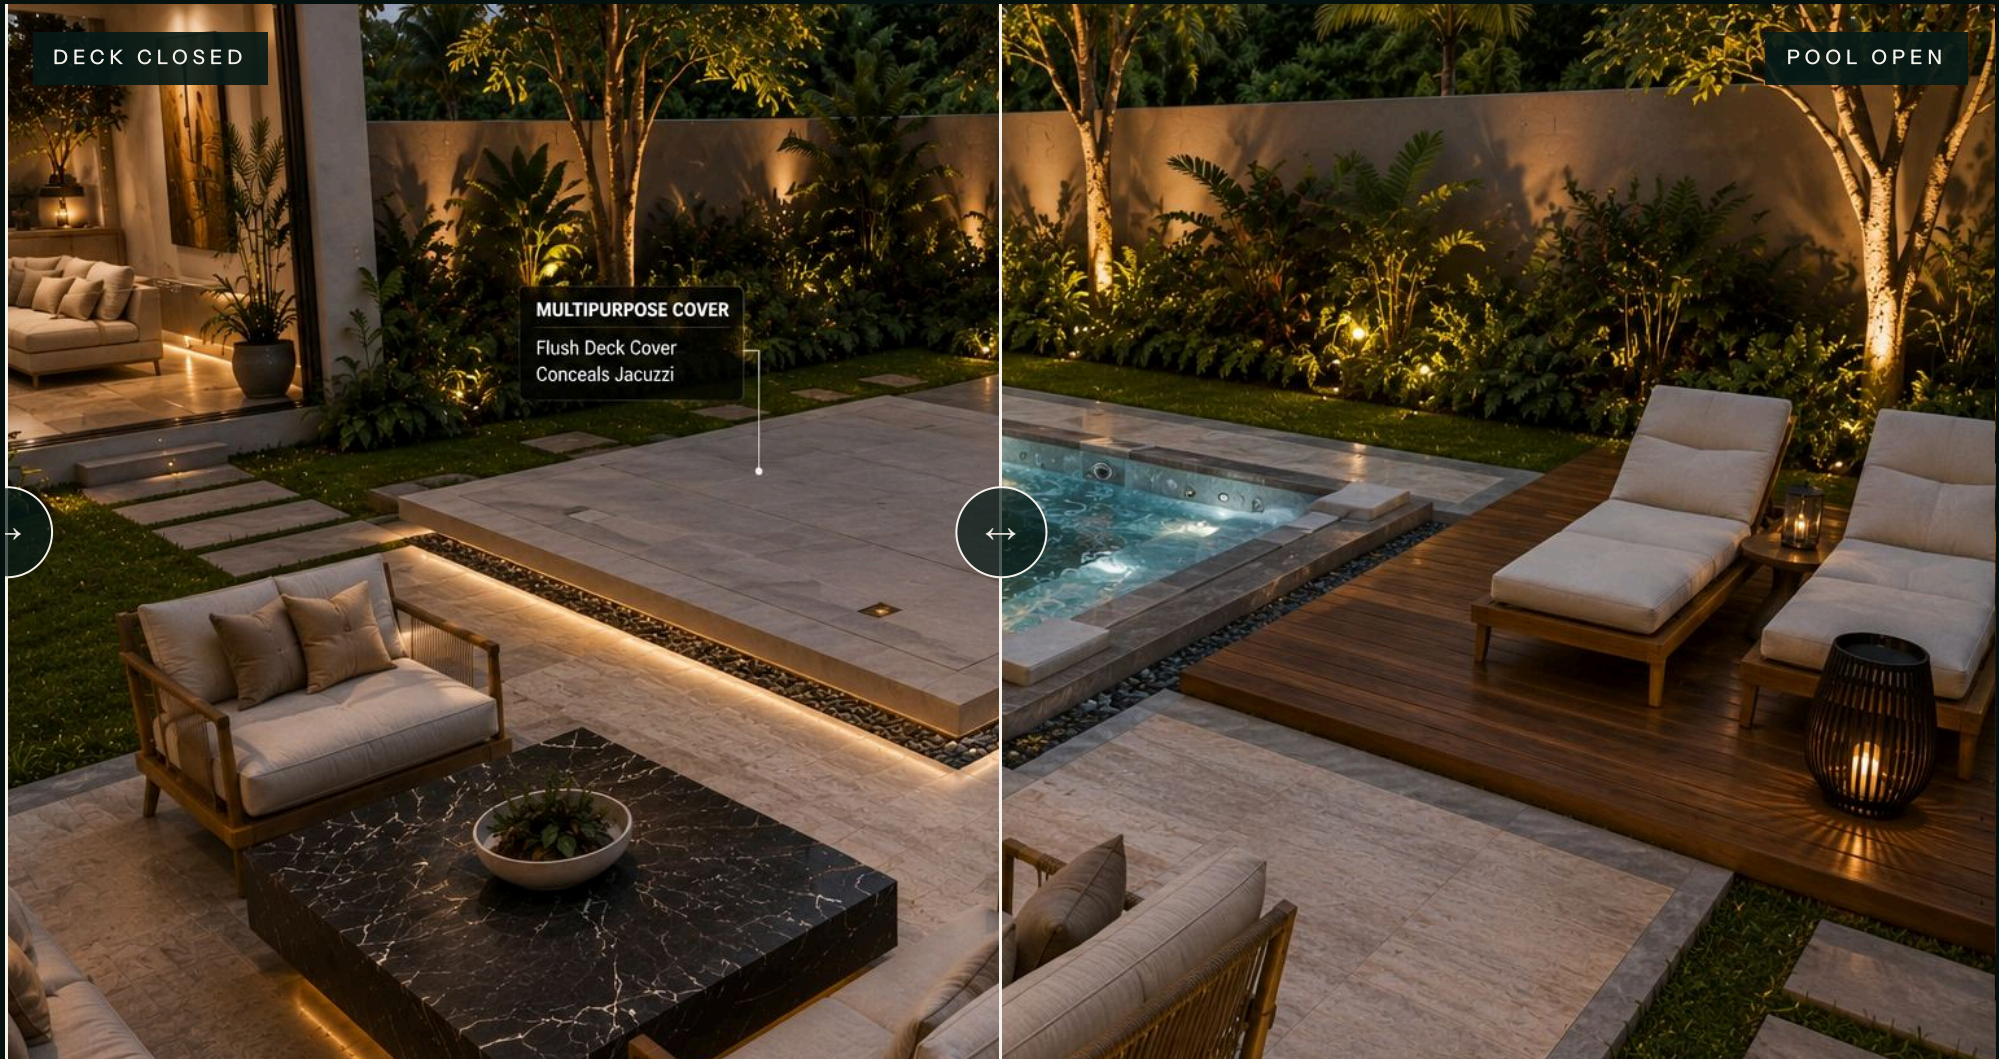

A sculptural stair rises past the indoor garden. Beside it, a private lift serves every level from the car porch to the roof terrace. The house stays easy at every age.

18:45

THE SIT-OUT

At dusk, the floor gives way to water

Every villa's sit-out hides a private jacuzzi pool beneath a motorised flush deck. Lounge on it by day; press a switch and it opens by evening.

DECK CLOSED · LOUNGE, DINING, BARBECUE

DECK OPEN · PRIVATE JACUZZI POOL

12

20:00

EVENING

The glass slides away and the living room steps outside

22:00

THE TERRACE

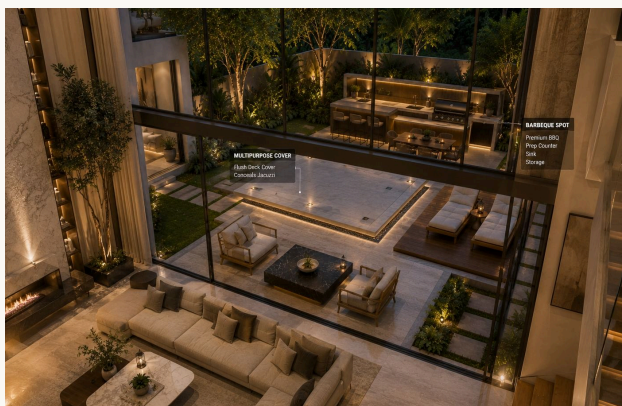

The day ends higher than it began, on a private roof terrace, with balconies on every floor below.
